- Audio Section: Includes "Audio Mode" with radio buttons for "Use Telephone" and "Use Mic & Speakers" (which is selected). Below are two volume sliders for microphone and speaker.
- Questions Section: A large text area for typing questions, with a "Send" button at the bottom right.
- Handouts Section: Titled "Handouts: 2 of 5", it lists two files: "2015 Back to School Webinar.pdf" and "Certificate of Completion - B2S Webin...". Below the list is a dashed box for file uploads with the text "Drag & drop a file" and a "Choose a file" button.

Four blue arrows are overlaid on the image: two on the left pointing towards the control panel, and two on the right pointing away from it.

[00:25:00] Harold G (Tutor): you have to work it out, yes.
 [00:25:23] Guest: oh ok, so then the answer would be about 42016.8 cm^3?
 [00:25:39] Harold G (Tutor): how much do you get?
 [00:25:49] Harold G (Tutor): CORRECT!!! YOU GOT IT RIGHT!!!
 [00:26:02] Harold G (Tutor): what about significant figures?
 [00:25:56] Guest: 4.20x10^4 cm^3?
 [00:26:42] Harold G (Tutor): good!!!
 [00:27:23] Harold G (Tutor): if you want more information about density you can visit this website
 [00:27:29] Guest: yes, i think so. so in short, you have to place what you need to find in the beginning of the equation and multiply it by the part that you are given and the way that you have to cancel out the unit of measure.
 [00:27:41] Harold G (Tutor): URL > <http://www.elmhurst.edu/~chem/vchembook/120Adensity.html>
 [00:27:45] Guest: and then work with the numbers that you have left?
 [00:28:14] Harold G (Tutor): correct!! you now know the whole process!!!
 [00:28:28] Harold G (Tutor): Thanks for using Tutor.com. Please fill out the survey as you leave so we can learn how we can better help you in the future!
 [00:28:24] Guest: thank you very much!!

 [00:28:56] Harold G (Tutor): bye
 [00:29:03] Guest: alright, bye!

density = $\frac{\text{mass}}{\text{volume}}$ 1g = 1000mg

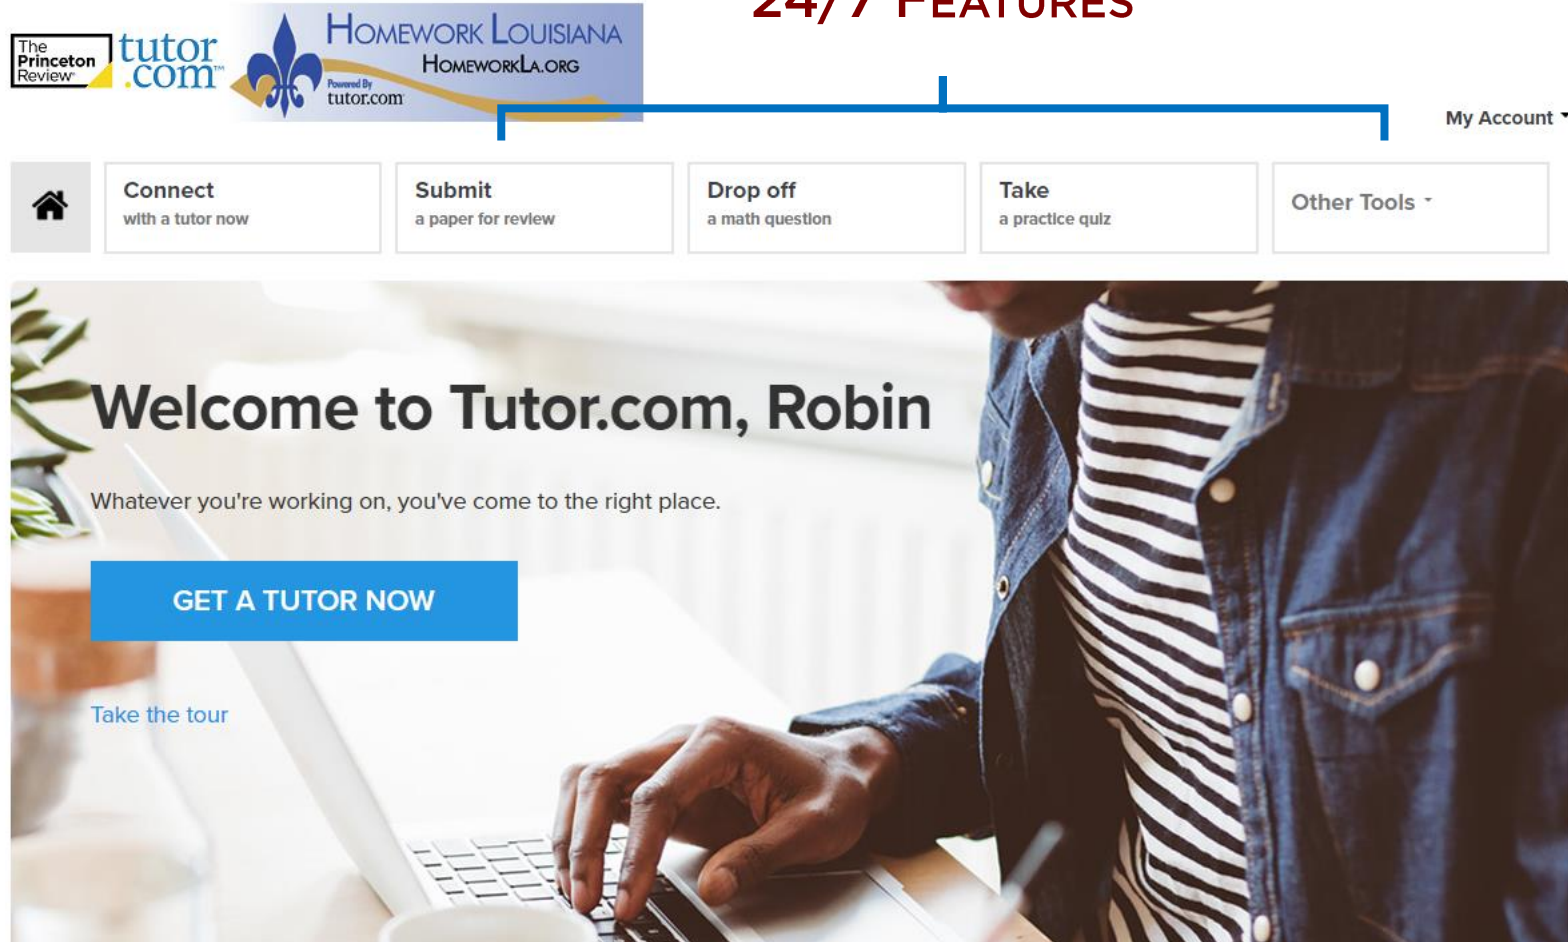

$70 \text{ g} \cdot \frac{1000 \text{ mg}}{1 \text{ g}} \cdot \frac{1 \text{ cm}^3}{1 \text{ mg}} = 70000 \text{ cm}^3$

A thesis is not necessary for this submission.	The thesis does not appear to be relevant, is not clearly defined, or lacks focus.	The thesis statement is present and clear. The focal point is not consistently maintained throughout the paper.	The thesis states the position, premise, or hypothesis, and is the focal point of the paper for the most part.	The thesis clearly and concisely states the position, premise, or hypothesis and is consistently the focal point throughout the paper.

This thesis statement target feedback:

Hi! Welcome to tutor.com! Thanks for using our review service today. Your paper is developing well. You will need to make some changes in terms of your thesis statement and your overall argument. I was not able to tell what your argument in this paper was. You have given an overview of these 2 acts and a summary of how they came to be and what they do, but there is no clear argument. Are you arguing that these Acts are beneficial? Are you arguing that Roosevelt made good decisions? You will need to be much clearer about this in your paper.

Step 6:

Now we need to graph the line $y = 3/2x + 13/2$. There are three different ways to graph an equation of line. (i) By creating a table of values, (ii) Using x-intercept and y-intercept, (iii) By using Slope and y-intercept. Let us choose table method to get few points to plot and then graph them. We can pick any x value preferable two negatives values, 0 and two positive values, so that we can graph on either side of the coordinate plane.

VIEW FULL SIZE

Step 7:

We need to use the five points that we got in the previous step to plot in the coordinate graph. A point is given by (x, y) the first coordinate is where the point lies on the x axis and the second coordinate is where the point lies on the y axis. Up and to the right are the positive directions and down and to the left are negative directions for both axes. To plot (-2, 3.5), from the origin we need to move LEFT 2 units and UP 3.5 units and plot the points. To plot (-1, 5), from the origin (0, 0) we need to move LEFT 1 unit and UP 5 units. To plot (0, 6.5) we need plot at 6.5 in the y-axis. To plot (1, 8) we need to move RIGHT 1 unit and UP 8 unit. To plot a point at (2, 9.5), we need to move RIGHT 2 units and UP 9.5 units. We need to join all the points to get the graph of the line $y = 3/2x + 13/2$. Hope this helps

KICKING OFF BACK-TO-SCHOOL PROMOTION

IT'S ELEMENTARY! (K-3RD)

Safe & Secure Assurance

Tutor.com's top priority is to provide a safe and secure learning environment for students. Our learning solutions are designed for students to get help anonymously from a professional tutor online. No personal information is shared between the tutor and student, and sessions are reviewed to ensure the highest standards of expertise, safety and quality.

Professional, Expert Tutors

We have thousands of tutors, all of whom are carefully screened experts and include certified teachers, college professors, graduate students, select undergraduates from accredited universities and other professionals. The majority are based in the U.S. and Canada.

Every Tutor is Screened, Certified and Background Checked

All of our tutors must complete a rigorous application process and pass an extensive background check to become a certified Tutor.com tutor.

Comprehensive Application. All tutors must demonstrate their tutoring skills and subject expertise during the application process.

Background Checks. Every tutor must complete a third-party background check, which includes a criminal background check and verification of their education.

Practice Each tutor leads mock tutoring sessions to become an expert in our online classroom.

Mentoring Ongoing mentoring and professional development allows tutors to continually develop their skills.

Safe, Quality Sessions

Tutor and student work in a secure online classroom, and no personal information is exchanged between tutors and students. Sessions are recorded and reviewed for quality control.

Our matching system pairs an incoming student to the next available tutor based on the student's grade level and subject they need help with.

No personal information is shared. Students only see a tutor's first name and last initial. Students are anonymous to the tutor.

Tutors are strictly prohibited from discussing anything personal with students and from exchanging any personally identifiable information.

All sessions are recorded, including all typing, whiteboard work, websites researched and files shared between tutor and student.

Sessions are scanned for inappropriate words and phrases, and reviewed by Tutor.com staff if flagged by the system.

Students can leave comments after every session, which provide us with feedback to continue to enhance the service.

Compliant with Children's Online Privacy Protection Act (COPPA).

Please contact Tutor.com at clientsupport@tutor.com with any questions regarding safety and security.

WITH SAT/ACT ESSENTIALS

tutor.com
A Service of The Princeton Review

Let's face it: preparing for college is very different in 2020.

Students can't necessarily tour schools in person and preparing for the SAT and ACT has changed immensely with in-person tutoring and classes moving online for the foreseeable future.

For testing updates: <https://www.princetonreview.com/college/sat-test-dates>

How can you, as librarians, help your college-bound patrons, and how best can you make sure they know about this additional layer of support? Digital outreach!

Tutor.com's Client Resource Center has a consistently-updated section devoted to digital resources: <https://www.tutor.com/clientcarelib/la>

These can be used in email outreach, social media posts (Instagram, Facebook, Snapchat) and any other way you're reaching patrons right now.

MEET JANE JOB- SEARCHER

Jane needs a job. She's been laid off due to the COVID-19 pandemic and doesn't know where to start her search. She knows she has transferrable skills but isn't sure how to present herself for different opportunities.

Jane hasn't job-searched in awhile and isn't sure how to find new job opportunities. Having been employed for the past several years, and unexpectedly searching for a job, Jamie doesn't know where to begin her search; she also is nervous for the interview process and could use a refresher on the process.

Jane needs to learn about Job Search Assistance from Tutor.com! Our audio feature is perfect for practicing interviews, and we can review cover letters and resumes via our Drop Off service. Let your patrons know it's available to them. We've always been remote, so let us help you and your patrons adjust to this new reality!

ACTIVITIES FOR BACK-TO-SCHOOL & BEYOND!

IN YOUR LIBRARY AND COMMUNITY

- Check the link placements on your website and ensure that the links are pointing to the correct location. Make sure they're easy to find so patrons don't have to dig. Also check for correct titles and descriptions.
- Ensure that all staff members are trained so they can answer questions, even from afar.
- Build awareness: It's all virtual! Create an outreach plan that works when everyone is working and studying from home. Ask your local news to highlight Homework Louisiana and other online services. Host a virtual SAT[®]/ACT[®] bootcamp, demonstrate Homework Louisiana to patrons

IN YOUR LOCAL SCHOOLS

- Back-to-School, In-Services, Parent-Teacher Conferences, classroom demos, library card “fair” – all of which can be done virtually during the COVID-19 pandemic
- Share bookmarks, posters & flyers with school libraries (if students are physically in school; otherwise, share digital resources the schools can use)
- Reach out to homeschool groups and students learning virtually
- Email teachers and counselors, announce Homework Louisiana in Parent Portals, include program cards included with grade reports
